General Terms & Conditions

1. General Code of Practice

- i. The core values of all Centre activity are integrity, inclusion and respect. Participants are expected to maintain these values when working with other participants and with our teaching faculty. Our participants are required to have substantial psychological, spiritual and professional maturity.
- ii. If a participant becomes aware of any unethical behaviour on the part of another student or faculty member, they must first bring the matter directly to the attention of the person concerned. If this does not resolve the situation, they are expected to take the matter directly to their tutor or course facilitator.
- iii. If the issue is with a facilitator, the participant should contact the Centre Business Manager, magda@thesc.net, who will direct you to the appropriate company director.

TERMS & CONDITIONS

- iv. Participants are reminded that a central aspect of Centre activity and teaching is dealing with psychological and emotional trauma. This means that it is important all participants take their participation seriously and treat each other with respect and care.
- v. Boundaries for Foundation, Applied and Couples training activity: To support the learning journey of the course, participants must establish and maintain appropriate boundaries between themselves, the facilitators and Centre staff members. Participants should exercise caution in forming sexual relationships with other participants whilst taking part in Centre activity and be aware that in forming intimate relationships the dynamics of any group will be affected. In such cases, the facilitator should be informed so that the situation can be held in a way that does not negatively affect the group.
- vi. The participant's place as part of any Centre activity is non-transferable. In relation to any activity offered online, the access links sent to a participant who has booked a place must not be shared in any capacity.

2. Anti-Discrimination

- i. The Centre activity requires a radically inclusive approach from participants.
- ii. Participants must consider and address their own prejudices to ensure that an anti-discriminatory approach is integral to their work with fellow participants, facilitators and Centre staff.

3. Suitability for Participation

- i. Participants are required, before the workshop training begins, to inform the Centre of any physical or mental health issues that may affect their participation in any Centre activity in any way.
- ii. This includes present conditions and any psychosis, depression, schizophrenia or any other mental illness in the (recent) past.
- iii. The need for medication for these issues must be disclosed.

4. Support

- i. As the Centre's remit is specifically training and education, and not explicitly personal development, it is understood that if personal issues arise, participants are responsible for ensuring that their emotional and psychological needs are met outside of the training circle.
- ii. If suicidal thoughts are expressed please note that we have a duty of care to inform your GP or other appropriate authority.

5. Confidentiality

- i. Participants must not reveal confidential information concerning fellow participants without the permission of the person concerned, except when legally required to break confidentiality, or to prevent serious harm to another or themselves.
- ii. Any satellite practice groups formed and managed by the participants, without Centre involvement, must agree their own confidentiality boundaries. The Centre holds no responsibility for breaches of confidentiality arising from the use of social media channels by satellite practice groups formed by participants.
- iii. The Centre may use audio, video footage and images of participants in marketing and community mailings, with the permission of the participant.
- iv. Centre activity may not be recorded in any capacity, without written permission from the Centre facilitators.
- v. For online activity, participants must not use the hosting platform functionality to record or capture images from any part of the activity.

TERMS & CONDITIONS

6. Suspension

- i. A participant may be asked to cease their participation in any activity, at any time, at the discretion of the Centre.
- ii. Activities that may lead to suspension include violent or abusive behaviour; being under the influence of drugs or alcohol; inappropriate or bullying behaviour; an inability to control personal behaviour; or when the participant's continuing presence in the group affects, in an unacceptable way, the quality of the learning experience of the rest of the group.

7. Intellectual Property

- i. All teaching material developed by the Centre and any IP Rights will remain the property of the Centre and may not be reproduced, distributed or used by the participant in any capacity.
- ii. Teaching material includes written, audio and video files.
- iii. Any teaching materials generated by the Centre must be used only in relation the relevant Centre activity and cannot be used in any other capacity without the Centre's written permission.
- iv. Centre activity may not be recorded in any capacity, without written permission from the Centre facilitators.

10. Cancellation of Activity by the Centre

- i. If the Centre decides to cancel an activity (or part thereof), all fees paid to the Centre (or an exact proportion of the full fee which reflects the days/times cancelled), will be refunded to the participant. However, the Centre will not be responsible for reimbursing any other costs incurred - such as travel or accommodation. These will remain the responsibility of the participant.

11. Force Majeure

- i. If the Centre is forced to cancel any activity (of part thereof) due to unforeseen circumstances that are beyond our control, we will not be able to offer any refund, in full or in part.
- ii. Circumstances such as these would include, but are not limited to, industrial strikes, lock-outs, fire, flood, war, civil unrest, pandemics, notifiable diseases as per UK government guidelines, adverse weather, issues at the host venue that endanger human health and acts of God. In these circumstances, we would make every effort to reschedule the activity (or part thereof).
